Monday 19 October 1998

Venue: Gallipoli Room, Anzac House,

Time: 1200 Hrs Fellowship. 1230 Hrs Luncheon

Speaker: Richard Weller

Topic: Designing the Gallipoli Peace Park

R ichard Weller, Senior Lecturer in the School of Architecture and Fine Arts in the University of WA, teaches design, history and theory of landscape architecture.

He has practised extensively in Australia and Europe winning many international awards. He is a director of the design company Room 4.1.3 in association with Vladimir Sitta.

They are now working on the winning landscape design for the National Museum of Australia after Ashton Baggatt McDougall won an international competition.

Richard will tell us how his design team made the successful submission to the Turkish Government in 1997-98 that won an international competition to plan the landscape and architecture of the whole Gallipoli Peninsula, with ideas for management in which old and new could coexist, the heritage could be protected and the park as a whole could be operated as a symbol and attraction.

No Highgate members were admitted to Hollywood Private Hospital between 15 and 29 September. Vivian Statham has been discharged and has gone home to Frank. Unfortunately Arch Campbell suffered a heart attack on the weekend of 27 September and is in Intensive Care. I visited him briefly several times. He is making satisfactory progress and was quite lucid when I saw him. He is our only inmate.

Vale Sir Val

"Val", as he was known affectionately in earlier years by his contemporaries, became "Sir Val" upon attaining the pinnacle of his chosen profession - the position of Chief of Air Staff RAAF in 1961

Upon finishing at Hale School, he embarked initially on an Army career entering RMC Duntroon in 1925. On graduating in 1928 he transferred to the then fledgling RAAF and trained as a pilot

After service in Nos 1 and 3 Squadrons he filled a number of staff appointments which continued with the rapid expansion of the RAAF on the outbreak of World War II. Eventually he secured an operational tour flying Beaufort bombers with 100 Squadron and 71 Wing in New Guinea and was awarded the DFC

Post World War II he held several Senior Staff appointments including AOC RAAF, AOC RAF 224 Group and AOC RAAF Operational Command prior to becoming CAS in 1961.

It was during his term as CAS that significant new aircraft acquisitions were approved including that of the F-lll Strike aircraft which today remains the most important element of Australia's air power inventory.

It was a privilege to have served under Air Marshal Hancock and to have been involved in the procurement of the F-lll in which he retained an abiding interest.

He was an outstanding athlete in his youth and maintained a high standard of physical fitness playing tennis well into his eighties. Seriously, he sustained his other passion for flying which he continued actively for many years after his retirement.

Sir Valston died on 29 September in his 92nd year. He is survived by Lady Joan, wife and partner for 68 years, children John, Richard and Rosemary, and six grandchildren.

We at Highgate will miss his cheerful presence at our luncheon meetings, but we will remember and treasure the memory of a true gentleman in every respect. We salute you, Sir Val.

Dawn Service

s we gather here to face the dawn, we honour those who faced the night. Not a night of rest, nor dreams. Not a night of shared laughter or the warmth of homefire. But a monstrous corruption of nature, an eclipse of humanity itself.

And yet when we look at the night sky, the wonder we feel is surely for the stars, not the black veil behind them.

Their story of sacrifice and suffering, of constancy and compassion, illuminates the very essence of the Anzac spirit. For, of all our heroes, they were armed with human virtue alone and their victory was over the darkest recesses of the human heart.

To a superb tradition of self-discipline under fire was added selflessness and ingenuity. To a heritage of wild reckless bravery was added cold calculated valour sustained for years.

To the world proof was given that tyranny, in the end, has no power over the courage and decency of ordinary men and women. It is an example to which we all aspire - as relevant to peace as to war, to our future as to our past.

And on this sacred day, at this most sacred place, we honour all Australian service men and women who gave or offered their lives in war.

We pay tribute to our veterans, unique Australians who have known the blessings and hardship of both conflict and peace.

On this day we enrich ourselves, for it's been said a nation reveals itself not only by the men it produces but by the men it honours, the men it remembers.

On this day most of all, we mourn the fallen - long years of love and talent lost, of potential unrealised, of generations unborn.

We would have them know of our firm and steadfast belief that they rest not in shades of darkness but bask in the brightness of an Australian sun.

We would have them know that we will remember them.
